October Meeting

Ken Sands gave a fantastic lecture on Improv. Everyone learned a lot and had a lot of fun. Ken taught us how to relax and enjoy performing. Ken's Yes/And technique was a useful technique and channeling a show from possible derailment to success. Ken gave the group many funny and useful examples on how to turn unexpected (or expected) show detractions and interruptions into part of the show. He got everyone involved with demonstrations on how certain moments in a show, sure to disturb the show, can be used to turn the situation around and guide the show to almost certain success. The show is not necessarily about the magic, it is about the magician and the connection he or she has with his audience.

This lecture was one of the most fun, exciting, and educational lectures. Everyone left with new ideas on how their next performance will be more exciting and fresh by taking advantage of those spontaneous moments and not letting these gems go to waste.

After Ken Sands lecture, a few members got up to perform some Halloween themed magic.
